

HEADING

Alles Alm on the Gnadental

SUBHEADING

Discover life on an alpine pasture along the family trail

SHORT TEXT

How do people and animals live on an alpine pasture? The Alles Alm family trail invites you to find out through play. Ten themed stations turn a walk across the Gnadental into a journey of discovery for the whole family.

TEXT

Between Obertauern and Radstadt, the Gnadental offers wide meadows set against the Radstädter Tauern mountain backdrop. Here, Alles Alm takes you from station to station along pushchair-friendly paths. Stories, puzzles and games introduce life on the alpine pasture, the natural surroundings and the animals that live here.

The route starts at the viewing tower beside the large Swiss stone pine, which is also the finishing point and the start of the alpine pasture quiz. Along the way, children can practice their balance, explore the marmot burrow and test their skills on the Kuhfleckensprungmeile. Rest areas offer a chance to pause, while alpine lodges welcome you with refreshments. If you would like to extend your outing, you can also visit the lake Johanneswasserfall.

HARD FACTS & LINKS

- Location: Gnadental, between Obertauern and Radstadt
- 10 themed stations and an alpine pasture quiz
- Circular trail: approx. 5 km | 50 metres of elevation gain | approx. 2 hours, allowing time for the stations
- Pushchair-friendly and free of charge
- Start and finish: viewing tower beside the large Swiss stone pine
- Limited parking; travel by public transport recommended

Alles Alm Family Trail

